Did the Gold Titans place their bets and Win ?

Is there an echo from FE Magazine here? Now the Titans have the price at a level they are comfortable with, now can we expect to see gold prices move up again? our inside sources says yes but only when the dollar is strong enough.

Now let's see why:

Gold fell $76.50, or 5.56%, to 1,229.50 in early trading. The contract traded as low as $1,285.00 in overnight trading as the U.S. dollar rose to the highest in more than a week against six major currencies.

Why has gold prices, after a brief recovery, have continued to plunge when the Federal Reserve and other central banks keep printing money. Also why has the U.S. stock market continuing to climb, what can we expect in the future?

Did the Gold Titans place their bets and Win ?

Over the past few years major investors has been demanding a safe-haven for their assets due to the waning against the backdrop of a strengthening U.S. dollar and rising U.S. bond yields, The Gold Market and Silver market was the best asset for investors to invest in, now the conditions for gold and silver have become markedly less favourable," this is what the banks is telling its investors strange: Why.

What is happening to the Gold Industry reminds me of the old James Bond Movie (Gold Finger) but the only difference is there is a change of characters.

Most experienced people in the commodity industry is well aware that whoever controls the gold market, controls currency market and so on.

No less than four investment banks have adjusted their commodity calls. And one, Goldman Sachs, has revisited the theme twice, Deutsche Bank, which made the changes as part of its quarterly review, said a slower-than-expected recovery for China and expectations for Fed tapering are the major rationale behind the cuts. Oil forecast trims are based on a bullish dollar outlook:

- Gold GCQ3 -0.16% 2013 forecast cut 6.7% to $1,431/oz, 2014 cut 10.8% to $1,338
- Silver SIQ3 2013 cut 9.9% to $24.10/oz, 2014 cut 13.1% to $23.30/oz
- Copper HGN3 +1.19% 2013 cut 3.9% to $3.43/oz
- Platinum PLN3 2013 cut 4.4% to $1,586/oz, 2014 cut 5.6% to $1,700/oz
- WTI CLQ3 -0.03% crude 5.2% to $95.1/barrel, 7% to $96/barrel

Did the Gold Titans place their bets and Win ?

HSBC has also knocked down its gold and silver prices.

As for gold, there was a stampede to change forecasts prices were trading around $1,462, but they were already moving after a big drop in gold, which is nearly $200 lower now.

Should we know more about what these big banks are telling us, commodity prices have been weak for some time, with copper prices struggling since the end of 2011 and gold has limped along despite "continued elevated levels of monetary stimulus." Oil prices, he says, remain demand driven.

Morgan Stanley has lowered its gold and silver price forecasts citing the possibility of reduced U.S. Federal Reserve monetary stimulus or outright withdrawal from the current quantitative easing program.

The bank cut its 2013 gold price forecast by 5 percent to $1,409 an ounce and its 2014 estimate by 16 percent to $1,313.

Morgan Stanley lowered its 2013 silver price forecast by 14 percent to $23.39 an ounce and its 2014 estimate by 29 percent to $21.01 an ounce.

The bank maintained its bullish view on palladium, raising its 2013 price forecast by 1 percent to $743 an ounce, as it expects auto sector demand to remain robust.

Morgan Stanley also downgraded the whole base metal sector saying growing oversupply and excess capacity was cause for caution.

The price of gold fell some $20 to $1277 an ounce in June 2013 and Goldman Sachs predicted further falls over the next couple of years as the more stable economic situation and higher real interest rates encouraged investors to seek returns elsewhere.

Even the growing popularity of gold as a wedding present in India, the biggest retail market for the precious metal, cannot stop the price tumbling further according to the investment bank.

This shows that gold is probably ready to climb. The reversal was proof that we have found a bottom Fuelling the buying that a downgrade of U.S. debt is likely if the government fails to get its finances in order in 2013.

- Gold 2013 $1,400/oz from $1,580/oz, 2014 $1,500 from $1,180
- Silver 2013 $24.20/oz from $28.50/oz, 2014 $21.30 from $27.20
- Copper 2013 $7,240 metric ton from $7,482, 2014 $6,225 from $6,675
- Brent UK:LCOQ3 +0.34% 2013 $108 barrel from $112

FORD USA Beats Mercedes Benz in Securing Ast0n Martin

The new 2014 Aston Martin Vanquish Volante

FE Magazine is happy to let you know that Aston Martin has inked a new deal with Ford that will see the American car giant supply it with engines for the next five years, , which great news for America's Car Industry.

The deal will also be cheered by workers at Ford's factory in Cologne, Germany, which supplies the Midlands car manufacturer with V8 and V12 engines.

The James Bond car maker was in talks with other engine suppliers, including Mercedes-Benz, FEM was told that ford was the hardest negotiator in securing the deal, this was mainly viewed by the US mass market import of Austin Martin Cars especially with the new 2014 Aston Martin Vanquish Volante which has orders that runs into 2016.

FORD USA Beats Mercedes Benz in Securing Ast0n Martin

2013 Aston Martin Vanquish

Our US Source stated that the Austin Martin is one of the best, if not the best cost effective Luxury Sports Cars to Drive in the USA and around the World.

Aston Martin is also understood to be closing in on a new chief executive to replace Ulrich Benz, who has held the position for 13 years.

The sports car maker received a new fresh investment last year when Invest industrial, an Italian private equity firm with US links, bought a 37.5% stake for £150m. It remains controlled by Investment Dar, a Kuwaiti finance house. Last week it emerged that the firm offered creditors shares in Aston Martin as part of a restructuring deal.

America's Delta Air Lines has bought 49% of Virgin Atlantic

America's Delta Air Lines has bought a 49% stake in Sir Richard Branson's Virgin Atlantic carrier and struck a collaboration alliance that will see the two groups work together in competition with British Airways, the market leader in transatlantic aviation.

Delta will pay $360m (£224m) to Singapore Airlines, ending the Asian group's disappointing 12-year investment in Virgin. Singapore Airlines had acquired the near-half share from Branson in 2000 for £600m.

Virgin's new partnership arrangements with Delta, which will require clearance from competition authorities, have been presented as a direct response to the controversial alliance between American Airlines and BA which handed the two airlines 60% of the transatlantic market two years ago.

Branson has insisted the much-anticipated deal with Delta does not sound a death knell for the Virgin Atlantic brand – despite speculation to the contrary from Willie Walsh, chief executive of BA parent IAG, in recent days.

Publicity around the tie-up between Delta and Virgin came close to descending into farce as Branson and Walsh taunted each other over the likely consequences for the airline established by the Virgin entrepreneur 28 years ago.

Walsh disparagingly suggested that Delta would not tolerate Branson's brand for long, suggesting the US airline was really largely focused on securing Virgin's Heathrow airport slots. Branson hit back, provocatively proposing a £1m bet that the Virgin brand would remain in existence for at least five years.

Later, Branson claimed on his blog that the goading exchanges had got even more puerile. "Glad to see Willie Walsh's rather childish response to my bet proposal," he posted. "Rather than the losing company giving the winner's staff £1m, he wants the loser to receive a knee in the groin."

On more serious matters, Branson said: "For almost three decades Virgin Atlantic has been punching above its weight. We fought hard to stop BA and American Airlines getting together but they created a complete giant across the Atlantic.

Now we are partnering with Delta we can give them a real run for their money which is, I suspect, why BA's chief executive has behaved the way he has over the last couple of days."

America's Delta Air Lines has bought 49% of Virgin Atlantic

While the two businesses will co-operate closely in many areas, generating significant – but undisclosed – savings, the Delta and Virgin liveries will remain distinct, leading to some suggestions the deal could lead to consumer confusion.

Customers at New York's John F Kennedy airport will be able to use either the Delta or the Virgin lounge which are alongside one another, while Delta's operations at Heathrow are expected to move alongside those of Virgin's at terminal three in years to come.

The collaborative operation will bring together Virgin's six round-trip flights a day from Heathrow to JFK with a further three operated by Delta.

While both sides acknowledged deal negotiations had been hard fought, Delta's chief executive, Richard Anderson, sought to smooth over suggestions of any remaining tensions or cultural clashes with Branson's airline. "To be associated with a great business leader and a great business brand like this is truly humbling for us at Delta," he insisted, adding that Delta and Virgin cultures would "mesh well together".

Branson earlier this week insisted he would remain in control of Virgin, and on Tuesday reiterated the point. "Ignore the press speculation – I'm not going anywhere," he said. Delta and Virgin emphasised that the collaboration would improve rather than damage consumer choice.

Virgin's chief executive, Steve Ridgway, said the alliance "will be combating their [BA's] dominance of 60% of the north Atlantic [flight market]". Branson said the deal was necessary to create a partnership that would "give the rest of the industry a true run for their money".

The Virgin founder said he had asked Anderson if there was any truth to Walsh's claims that Delta intended to kill off the Virgin brand. "He replied: 'No! This makes my blood boil. The whole purpose is to join our brands together.'"

Started in 1984 with a single flight from Gatwick to Newark in New Jersey, Virgin now flies to 34 destinations and carries about 6 million passengers a year.

Delta serves more than 160 million customers a year and offers services to more than 300 destinations in 58 countries.

Gold prices in futures trade managed to regain

Gold prices in futures trade managed to regain 25,000-level by recouping most part of their early losses in post evening session of trade Friday as market players covered their short positions in tandem with a firming global trend.

At the Multi Commodity Exchange (MCX), gold for delivery in August traded down by Rs 7 at Rs 25,368 per ten grams after moving in range of Rs 24,830-25,470.

However, silver for delivery in July moved higher by Rs 196 to Rs 38,992 per kg.

According to Shiv Shrivastava, MD & CEO, IGuru Research, next target for the yellow metal will be Rs 24,600.

He, however, mentioned that in the medium term domestic prices may see more downside as compared to overseas market as sustained weakness in rupee will prompt RBI to take necessary steps, which may lastly give some boost to Indian currency against US dollar.

Gold price in overseas markets, which normally set price trend on the domestic front, fell below USD 1,200 today to its lowest since August 2010 before recovering, and is on track to post its worst quarter since at least 1968 on persistent worries over the US Federal Reserve's plan to wind down its monetary stimulus.

The yellow metal has taken a beating since the beginning of last week - losing as much as 15 percent, or about USD 200 an ounce - after Fed Chairman Ben Bernanke laid out a strategy to roll back the bank's USD 85 billion monthly bond purchases in the face of a recovering economy. es posted their strongest performance for the month since 1986, highlighting strong safe-haven buying amid economic uncertainty.

De Beers, Mountain Province Formalize Regional Commitment at Gahcho Kue

De Beers Canada and Mountain Province Diamonds entered into a socio-economic agreement (SEA) with the government of the Northwest Territories for the proposed Gahcho Kué diamond mine.

The agreement formalizes commitments made with respect to employment, training, business opportunities and other related benefits for area residents. It also establishes measures to monitor possible socio-economic impacts related to the proposed mine and establishes the mechanism to work with communities close to the mine in order to ensure an adaptive management approach to socio-economic performance.

The agreement includes incentives to assist employees living in the Northwest Territories for priority hiring and relocation benefits; training, apprenticeships and professional sponsorship; transportation allowances and transparency and accountability.

The Gahcho Kué diamond mine expects to have a mine life of approximately 11 years, employ up to 700 people during construction and approximately 400 people during operations. Operators anticipate the mine will produce, on average, 4.5 million carats per year during its lifespan.

"In signing this SEA, both parties are affirming their commitment to advancing this project in a way that not only creates jobs for our residents, but that supports the health and wellness of the region," said the Minister of Industry, Tourism and Investment, David Ramsay.

"This is a significant step forward in opening this mine, a project that will translate into economic opportunities for people throughout the North and South Slave Regions, and across the territory." Tony Guthrie, the president of De Beers Canada and the chairman of the Gahcho Kué management committee, added,

"This is an important milestone for De Beers and for our joint venture partner, Mountain Province Diamonds.

The signing of this agreement confirms that De Beers and the government of the Northwest Territories are committed to working together to optimize opportunities for the residents and economy, while respecting the cultures and traditions of communities close to the mine. This agreement positions Gahcho Kué to contribute to the economic success of the NWT and its all-important diamond industry."

U.S. Posts Record Year for Oil Growth

The energy giant's Statistical Review of World Energy, which has been being published for more than six decades, is the latest report to signal a shift in world energy markets as a result of the U.S. shale oil boom.

According to BP, U.S. crude oil production last year recorded the largest increase in the world and the nation's history at more than one million barrels a day. Production totaled 8.9 million barrels a day, a 14% jump year-over-year.

The nation's previous record was an annual gain of 640,000 barrels a day in 1967. The combination of hydraulic fracturing and horizontal drilling has allowed the industry to retrieve oil from shale rock formations, particularly North Dakota's Bakken Shale and the Eagle Ford Shale in Texas.

Thanks to those booming shale plays, crude oil production in the U.S. has soared to help keep the global market adequately supplied and offset declining production in other regions. Meanwhile, with production of natural gas rising and prices at low levels, the U.S. posted the world's largest decrease in coal consumption in 2012.

"On the supply side, the most noticeable phenomenon remains the American shale revolution," BP Chief Executive Bob Dudley said in an introduction to the report.

Although the U.S. remains a large oil importer, it is bringing in the least amount of crude since the mid-1990s.

BP noted that it doesn't expect the nation's surge in oil output to have a major impact on global prices.

The U.S., now third in global crude production behind Saudi Arabia and Russia, still produces only one out of every 10 barrels worldwide. Restrictions on crude exports from the U.S. also dampen the impact on prices.

The challenge for U.S. producers, the report added, is meeting infrastructure needs that have been outpaced by production.

Crude must travel from the oil fields to refineries, primarily by pipeline and rail, but limited pipeline infrastructure has created regional gluts in locations like Oklahoma, where prices have declined. However, the excess supply in those areas hasn't brought substantial amounts of cheap oil and fuel to consumers, BP said.

Other regions have seen output ease. Production in the U.K. fell 13.4% in 2012. Former OPEC nation Indonesia saw a 3.9% drop.

UK and China in £21bn currency swap deal

The Bank of England and its Chinese counterpart have signed a deal likely to boost trade between the UK and China in the Yuan.

The Bank and the People's Bank of China have signed a three-year currency swap arrangement worth 200bn yuan (£21bn, $33bn), the UK central bank confirmed.

The UK is looking to become a centre for the Chinese currency, also known as the renminbi, British banks hold 35bn yuan worth of deposits in the Chinese currency.

Currency-swap agreements allow central banks to swap currencies and can be used by firms to settle trade in local currencies rather than in US dollars, as happens now, since China's currency is not fully convertible to other currencies.

The prospective deal was first announced in February by BoE Governor Sir Mervyn King.

"In the unlikely event that a generalised shortage of offshore renminbi liquidity emerges, the Bank will have the capability to facilitate renminbi liquidity to eligible institutions in the UK," Sir Mervyn said on Saturday.

Last year, the UK Treasury announced plans to make London - the world's largest currency trading hub - the leading international centre for trading the yuan outside mainland China and Hong Kong.

China has been gradually relaxing strict controls on the value of its currency and on flows of capital.

Beijing has been using these pacts as part of its push for a more global role for the yuan.

It has a swap agreement with Brazil worth $30bn and has also signed similar agreements with other trading partners such as Japan, Australia and Hong Kong.

Scams Review for July and August 2012

Welcome to dedicated to Evil Fraudsters and Scammers and how far these people would go to get their hands on your money.

We at First Edge have seen & knows all what there is to know about scammers.

We will can also supply you with the right procedures and put you in contact with the right sellers that can make you money.

90% of the time it come down to greed in losing your investment this means not looking at the down-side of the transaction and not speaking with professional companies like First Edge for advice.

First Edge can safely say it has never lost out on any Gold Deal that why we are getting more and more investors to transact deals for them.

Our procedures are water tight and we are always updating our procedures for our ourselves & our wide range of financiers.

The scams can range from a business claiming to be a gold bar, gold dust, or gold coin supplier to an individual involved in the shipping, investment or sale of gold. Gold scams are common in West Africa but no country is immune. Scams can take place in any country.

In addition to the common gold scams on the internet, gold bars carry an increased risk of forgery due to their less stringent parameters for appearance. Larger bars have a greater volume that can enable a partial forgery using a tungsten-filled cavity, which is not easy to detect. Fake gold coins are common, and are usually made of gold-plated lead. The purity of a gold bar or coin can be expressed as a decimal figure ranging from 0 to 1, known as the millesimal fineness. Such ratings and quality inspections can be easily manipulated.

Subject: Patrizio Pilati
To: asrtech1981@gmail.com

He is now operating under a company from Dubai, and Australia with A Partner by name Of Alan the Company goes by the call letter NTR Nexus Technologies & Resources

Good Day Sir,

I have just come across your website and I wish I had known about it 3 weeks ago. The snake that that man is, is unbelievable.

He has cost me just over $12 000 in flights, accommodation, food and sorts.

He said that we needed to take Industrial diamonds to Zanzibar for him and that he will pay immediately. we were then told the transfer had been done, yet we are still waiting for that.

Something needs to be done to stop this man. Kaylan Grover Cell : 073 486 4621 Skype : kaylan.grover
