UK is the World's Fastest Growing Developed Economy

The International Monetary Fund (IMF) Tuesday upgraded its economic growth forecast for Britain, expecting the country to become the fastest growing among the world's advanced economies. The IMF said in its World Economic Outlook report that Britain had been buoyed by easier credit conditions and increased confidence.

The International Monetary Fund has upgrade Britain's growth forecast for the second time in just three months, cementing its status as one of the fastest growing major economies.

The IMF's expected 2014 growth upgrade to 2.4pc, from a forecast of 1.9pc in October, is likely to be the largest among the advanced economies, and follows a similar upward revision three months ago, when it raised its prediction from 1.5pc in April 2013.

It will also underscore the speed at which sentiment about Britain's economy has changed. Several respected forecasters, including the Bank of England and Office for Budget Responsibility (OBR), the Government's fiscal watchdog, have dramatically upgraded their UK growth projections in recent months.

The IMF's current stance contrasts with its view a year ago, when Olivier Blanchard, the Fund's chief economist, singled out the UK for criticism and said Chancellor George Osborne was "playing with fire" with his austerity programme.

Mr. Blanchard backtracked in October, and said he had been "pleasantly surprised" by the UK's performance.

It forecast the British economy would grow 2.4% this year, faster than any other major EU economies, higher than IMF's previous forecast of 1.9%.

British economic growth in Y 2015 is expected to be at 2.2%, higher than the previous forecast of 2% it made in October 2013.

"Growth is expected to average 2% in Y 2014-15, but economic slack will remain high," it said.

The treasury said the new British forecast was evidence that the government's economic plan was working.

The IMF also raised its global growth outlook slightly to 3.7% for Y 2014, rising to 3.9% in Y 2015

"Global activity strengthened during 2-H of Y 2013, as anticipated in the October 2013 World Economic Outlook. Activity is expected to improve further in Y 2014-15, largely on account of recovery in the advanced economies," the report said.

"In many emerging market and developing economies, stronger external demand from advanced economies will lift growth, although domestic weaknesses remain a concern," it added.

The IMF also increased its forecast for China's economy to 7.5% in Y 2014 and 7.3% in Y 2015.

UK is the World's Fastest Growing Developed Economy

Britain to become Europe's biggest economy by 2030

Britain will surpass France and Germany to become Europe's biggest economy by 2030, according to a study.

British research group the Centre for Economics and Business Research (CEBR) predicts that Britain's output will outstrip France's by 2018 before displacing Germany by around 2030.

But it will be overtaken by India and Brazil over the same time period, said the study released yesterday.

"Germany is forecast to lose its position as the largest Western European economy to the UK around 2030 because of the UK's faster population growth and lesser dependence on the other European economies," the report said.

"If the euro were to break up, Germany's outlook would be much better," it added. "A Deutsche Mark-based Germany certainly would not be overtaken by the UK for many years if ever."

The think tank's chief executive claimed that Britain's economy would grow even faster if it left the European Union.

FE Magazine Full Report on who is B.I.S

The Bank for International Settlements is the central bank of central banks, BIS is an immensely powerful international organization that most people have never even heard of secretly controls the money supply of the entire globe. It is located in Basel, Switzerland, but it also has branches in Hong Kong and Mexico City. It is essentially an unelected, unaccountable central bank of the world that has complete immunity from taxation and from national laws. Even Wikipedia admits that "it is not accountable to any single national government." The Bank for International Settlements was used to launder money for the Nazis during World War II, but these days the main purpose of the BIS is to guide and direct the centrally-planned global financial system. Today, 58 global central banks belong to the BIS, and it has far more power over how the U.S. economy (or any other economy for that matter) will perform over the course of the next year than any politician does. Every two months, the central bankers of the world gather in Basel for another "Global Economy Meeting". During those meetings, decisions are made which affect every man, woman and child on the planet, and yet none of us have any say in what goes on. The Bank for International Settlements is an organization that was founded by the global elite and it operates for the benefit of the global elite, and it is intended to be one of the key cornerstones of the emerging one world economic system.

The New Basel III banking laws for the top 100 world banks as issued by the Central Bank Europe, USA Federal Reserve, Bank of England, all in relation to Oil/ Sugar/ Rubber/Certain Hard Woods etc.

Gold price probe extended to Deutsche Bank

Germany's financial regulator has demanded documents from Deutsche Bank as part of an investigation into potential manipulation of gold and silver prices.

The probe from the German watchdog comes as regulators around the world step up their scrutiny of benchmarks after the recent Libor interbank lending scandal led to hefty fines for banks.

BaFin has grilled Deutsche Bank staff during several on-site inspections in the past few months, said people familiar with the matter, in a sign of how seriously the German regulator is scrutinising the precious metals markets.

Deutsche Bank is one of five banks that take part in the twice-daily "London gold fixing", and one of three banks that take part in the equivalent process for silver.

The UK's Financial Conduct Authority has also been looking at precious metals as part of a broader review of financial benchmarks. With an estimated 175m ounces of gold, worth $215bn at today's prices, changing hands daily on the over-the-counter market, London is the global centre of gold trading. However, the FCA has not launched a formal investigation.

Some bankers believe BaFin has come under pressure to show it is willing to get tough on suspected market manipulation. It was widely seen to have been slow to respond to the concerns over possible manipulation in the forex market expressed by other regulators around the world earlier this year.

Although the gold and silver fixings are, like Libor, set by small groups of banks, they contrast with the process for setting Libor in that they are based on trading activity rather than theoretical quotes.

The other banks that take part in the gold fixing are Barclays, Bank of Nova Scotia, HSBC and Société Générale. The other banks involved in silver fixing are Bank of Nova Scotia and HSBC. As the only German member of either fixing, Deutsche is the only bank to come under BaFin's remit

Happy Days are here again In Banking and Commodities

Our research has shown that happy days are here again, not only in the banking industry but also for the major trading companies, now compliance teams/officers will be more at ease when the New Basel 3 Laws is fully in effect, especially when it comes to verification of products, where in the past a large amount of wasted personal time and effort has gone into doing due diligent on products, and being able to strike a relationship with real buying or selling companies that is able to be transparent by being able to show each other they have real funds or product.

All the hard workers in this commodity industry knows that where working in a one-dimensional world where the only motivation is profit, we also know that working in this industry can at times be very difficult to get good deals, we also know the companies that gets the good deals are the one that stays one step ahead of the game, we also know that this is the cultural aspect of the business where in, we also know how difficult it is to have the right team of people with the knowledge to change the game, we have also found that very few people have the expertise or experience in redesigning and restructuring companies in the commodity field, most companies would pay a king ransom for a person who can fit this criteria. major banks and major companies have started to open up these positions because of the current tide being shown in the trading charts over the past 12 months by (BIS) Bank for International Settlements.

FEM has specially focused this article on the placing of Instruments and banking programs and why compliance officers are so important.

After reviewing the commercial industry and private banking institutions especially in Europe and the Middle East more so in London, Germany and Dubai also not forgetting the USA, city traders and bankers anonymously shared their views on the proposed bonus cap (limiting their bonuses to two times their salary), revealing a lot about the culture that they live in. They are confident that, no matter which rules are put in place, their institutions will find way around the rules, they always have done, this is mainly because of the high level relationship that is shared in this industry, this is because of the large amount of funds being traded with.

Most of today's debate between real buyers and sellers is on banking instruments and reform, talk of splitting, capping, stress tests and ring fences it all sounds very clinical.

Happy Days are here again In Banking and Commodities

When the recession hit most of the main trading and commodity institutions around the globe a large spotlight has been shown, where 80% of trader and brokers do not feel they have to justify their bonuses or commission in terms of needing the motivation in order to get up at 5am and not leave the office before 8pm or sometimes work round the clock because of the time difference. It's a lifestyle that doesn't seem very healthy – and certainly hasn't proved too healthy for the rest of society. It's difficult to experience alternative motivations beyond profit when working in such a monoculture, where profit is all there, just work for it, throughout all of bad press to date no one has mentioned how much the investors or shareholders receive on average from each trade?

Whatever rules is set the banks have to adhere to or is that what we are led to believe, or is it is the main investors and the common people who lead banks and work within them who define the culture and ultimately determine what those organisations become. While regulations are of central importance and are always necessary, they can never be sufficient in defining how an organisation operates. Governments, and maybe even some new bank CEOs, may want to find a quick fix,

Officially the most loathed profession is Banker/Broker/Trader with common consumers, twice as likely not be trusted than to be trusted, which has left their reputation is in tatters over the past few years. And in considering what a "good banker/broker/trader" in, the normal consumers imagination seems to be constrained.

Many now agree that a good banker/broker/trader is, or should be, just a "boring" institution – one that plays it safe and doesn't lose our money. But a truly sustainable good banker/broker/trader should go far beyond this.

Is a good bank just a 'boring' one?

Sustainable banks still exist; these are run by bankers with a different set of motivations and values. They see their role as one that can catalyse the development of sustainability by acting alongside their clients – the entrepreneurs and depositors – whose interests they are responsible for balancing in a healthy way. By working out how to finance a venture, bankers can unlock the creativity of entrepreneurs and can help savers to move their money towards activities that they support.

Happy Days are here again In Banking and Commodities

Can bankers be sustainability leaders of the future?

Given the power that banks have in being able to allocate money within an economy, this is entirely possible.

In Berlin, the leaders of the world's values-led sustainable banks are gathering for the annual conference of the Global Alliance for Banking on Values. Their focus this year is on change-makers – a reference to the clients that they work with but also the aspiration for what each bank is hoping to be.

They tell the story of bankers working with clients to create inspiring developments. In Mongolia, micro-finance bank XacBank has developed low-cost loans to insulate the wooden-tent homes of families living in Ulaanbaatar, the world's coldest capital city, while in Vancouver, Vancity, north America's largest credit union, has worked with aboriginal first-nation groups to provide financial solutions to meet the needs of their communities.

These stories aren't just interesting in themselves – they turn the banking debate on its head. By talking about the role they play between depositor and borrower, these banks awaken people to each other's roles in financial relationships, making money matters seem less intimidating and more accessible.

While they have to understand profit, loss, risk and the commercial drivers of business, they also need to understand the social connections around a business and its stakeholders. By taking this more integrated approach, these bankers stay connected to the real world as well as developing a longer-term approach to understanding financial health.

That's neither boring, nor irrelevant for considering how to build a robust long-term business model. These bankers don't need huge pay packets or bonuses to be motivated and they aren't part of a culture that tries to break the rules to serve themselves or maximise profits. Instead, they engage in how the financial system can best be altered to serve the deeper needs of society and the planet more effectively.

Having that kind of culture could be far more effective in changing the banking sector than any rules or regulations. And having these new kind of banks could change the economy and our world far more than we might currently imagine.

Worst Fuel Oil Loss Since 2011 Seen Easing on Import Cut: Energy

Refining losses from producing fuel oil in Asia are poised to narrow as imports from western countries and Iran decline while global economic growth boosts demand for transportation fuels.

Cargoes of the ship and power-station fuel cost an average $10.20 a barrel below Dubai crude this month, the largest monthly discount since April 2011, according to data compiled by Bloomberg. That gap, known as the crack spread, will narrow to minus $8 a barrel in the first quarter of 2014, according to the median estimate in a survey of five analysts and traders.

A recovery in fuel oil, which refiners typically produce at a loss after making gasoline and diesel, will help boost margins at companies including South Korea's S-Oil Corp. (010950) and Royal Dutch Shell Plc. (RDSA) Iran, once the second-biggest supplier to China, has cut exports by 67 percent compared with earlier this year. At the same time, global demand for shipping fuel is forecast to rebound amid economic growth from the U.S. to China.

"We will see more recovery in 2014," said Ehsan Ul-Haq, a senior market consultant at KBC Energy in Walton-on-Thames, England, who forecasts a crack of minus $7.50 in the first quarter. "Demand will recover if the Chinese and western economy recovers. Iran is going to use fuel oil domestically because they always have a gas shortage in winter."

Front-month high-sulfur fuel oil swaps were at $623.05 a metric ton as of 3:39 p.m. New York time, up 0.4 percent this year. Dubai crude, the benchmark grade for Asia, was at $108.63 a barrel today, gaining 2.2 percent in 2013.

URGENT WARNING FOR ALL BUYER AND SELLER/BROKERS

This should be the most important information released in the commodity industry, where the severity of this warning should make everyone realize the most serious impact that pertains in Oil and other commodities transactions.

FEM is happy to release this very important message to anyone involved in the commodities industry concerning the new measures with respect to all Buyers and Sellers conducting business' transactions around the globe.

From now on, if an ICPO, LOI, RWA, or BCL is issued and the document is not real, true and/or actually verifiably factual, the Buyer will be able to inform the FBI, ICC, and INTERPOL. In addition, after an FCO is sent to the Buyer, there should be a formal answer to Seller from Buyer in a timely manner in accordance with the agreement between parties.

If there is no response from the Buyer in a timely manner, the buying company will be reported to the FBI, ICC and INTERPOL. If this action is repeated by sellers, they too will also be reported for abuse of the NCND, LOI, ICPO, AND RWA OR BCL, FOR THIS IS NOW A FEDERAL OFFENSE.

It is important to transmit this to all clients that work with providers that are members of the ICC, FBI, and other international organizations. From this point forward, the international codes will be strictly enforced to exclude all intruders that send or transmit false information. Those who submit a false NCND/IMFPA, LOI, ICPO, RWA or BCL, or FCO, as well as FALSE PROOF OF PRODUCT (POP), FALSE PROOF OF FUNDS (POF) WILL BE CHARGED WITH A CRIME.

This offense went into effect on November 15, 2008 and re-effected in June 2013 after a meeting was held between the Federal Reserve, European Central Bank, Interpol, Federal Bureau of Investigation and Central Intelligence Agency.

The reason for this measurement is to protect the commodities industry which is a fundamental part of the world's economy.

The Non-Circumvention, Non-Disclosure & Working Agreement (NCNDA&IMFPA) we signed and it stated: WARNING:

This should be the most important information released in the commodity industry for years where the severity of this warning should make everyone realize the serious impact that pertains in all oil and other commodities transactions.
