Swift Code for World's Largest Economies

What are IBANs and SWIFT codes?

IBAN stands for International Bank Account Number, which you can use when making or receiving international payments.

Your IBAN doesn't replace your sort code & account number — it's an additional number that contains extra information to help overseas banks identify your account for payments.

You can find your IBAN on your statement or you can use our tool on our international payments page to generate your IBAN for any of your Barclays sterling accounts.

A SWIFT code (or SWIFTBIC, as it's sometimes known) is a code that helps overseas banks identify which bank to send money to. For example, if an overseas bank is sending to a payments.

Swift Code is a standard format of Bank Identifier Codes (BIC) and it is unique identification code for a particular bank. These codes are used when transferring money between banks, particularly for international wire transfers. Banks also used the codes for exchanging other messages between them.

The Swift code consists of 8 or 11 characters. When 8-digits code is given, it refers to the primary office. The code formatted as below;

AAAA BB CC DDD

- · First 4 characters bank code (only letters)
- Next 2 characters ISO 3166-1 alpha-2 country code (only letters)
- Next 2 characters location code (letters and digits) (passive participant will have "1" in the second character)
- · Last 3 characters branch code, optional ('XXX' for primary office) (letters and digits)

Currently, there are over 40,000 "live" Swift codes. The "live" codes are for the partners who are actively connected to the Swift network. On top of that, there are more than 50,000 additional codes, which are used for manual transactions. These additional codes are for the passive participants.

The registrations of Swift Codes are handled by Society for Worldwide Interbank Financial Telecommunication ("SWIFT") and their headquarters is located in La Hulpe, Belgium. SWIFT is the registered trademarks of S.W.I.F.T. SCRL with a registered address at Avenue Adèle 1, B-1310 La Hulpe, Belgium.

Swift Code, BIC Code, ISO 9362

Swift Code or BIC code are part of ISO 9362 standards. It is a standard format of Business Identifier Codes ("BIC"). BIC sometimes also refers to "Bank Identifier Code".

Swift Code or BIC Code is a unique code to identify financial and non-financial institutions. These codes are mostly used when transferring money between banks, especially for international wire transfers or telegraphic transfer ("TT"). The codes are also used in exchanging messages between banks.

For individual users, SWIFT Code normally used to transmit money across the international border.

RBS, Natwest, Barclays, Lloyds Axes Branch Managers Jobs in Business Restructure

RBS Axes 361 Natwest Branch Manager Jobs

The Royal Bank of Scotland has revealed that it will axe hundreds of jobs amid its wider plan to restructure its business.

RBS confirmed to IBTimes UK that it plans to cut 361 branch manager jobs at its subsidiary Natwest but will also create 116 other new branch manager roles "at a higher level to reflect the types of branch they'll be running and we expect these roles will be filled by those branch managers at risk."

It added that this leaves a net reduction of 245 branch manager roles.

Moreover, since it is also creating 45 new customer service officer positions, this leaves an overall net reduction of 200 roles impacted across the whole of the branch network.

All of their branches will continue to have a temp branch manager - this change will not affect how they serve our customers. This news will clearly affect staff changes.

"RBS stated we will do everything we can to support our staff; including seeking redeployment opportunities wherever possible and ensuring that compulsory redundancies are kept to a minimum."

RBS also said that personal and business customers can use through the Post Office to pay in cash and cheques at any of its 11,500 branches.

"Our customers are changing the way they bank with us," said Les Matheson, UK Retail CEO at RBS at the time.

"They want to be able to do their everyday banking in a variety of different ways - where and when it is convenient for them."

The UK Post Office currently handles around 11.5 Mil transactions- withdrawals and balance enquiriesand (€61m, $83m) cash withdrawals for NatWest and RBS customers in local communities.

Lloyds Bank is also to cut around 635 jobs in its retail and other divisions.

The cuts, part of reductions announced last October, will hit retail, commercial banking, consumer finance human resources and group operations, with 65 new roles being created.

Lloyds said compulsory redundancies would be a "last resort", but the Unite union said staff who had worked for the company's success had received "all the pain and little of the profits".

Barclays to cut 19,000 jobs as it scales back investment arm

More than half of overall losses will be in UK as part of shakeup by boss Antony Jenkins, including creation of a 'bad banking.

The cuts to Barclay's investment banking division come after a year CEO Antony Jenkins was criticised for increasing bonuses by 10% when profits fell 32%.

Barclays is cutting 19,000 jobs in a radical overhaul of its business, including a dramatic scaling back of its investment banking.

Antony Jenkins said there would be no repeat of his decision to increase bonuses by 10% when profits had fallen sharply, as he set out his strategy to partly unravel the work of his predecessor Bob Diamond who had aimed to run a major investment bank.

More than half of the 19,000 job cuts will fall in the UK and Jenkins said the coming months would be "challenging for colleagues" as the jobs were shed and a separate division – dubbed a "bad bank" – created to hold unwanted parts of the investment bank and operations in continental Europe together worth \pounds 115bn.

The shares were the biggest risers in the FTSE 100 jumping almost 8% despite concerns from analysts that the bank would lose revenue as a result of the cuts in its investment banking division, traditionally the group's powerhouse that generates more than 50% of the profits.

The investment bank is to lose 7,000 jobs from a workforce of about 24,000 as it shifts away from its traditional area of expertise in fixed income, currencies and commodities (FICC) and move towards advising customers and equities.

Advertisement

The 19,000 jobs going over the next three years include 12,000 cuts announced in February that were earmarked for this year. This year's total is now being raised to 14,000 as 2,000 jobs will go in the investment bank. That leaves 5,000 investment bankers facing redundancy by 2016. At least 4,000 of the 19,000 jobs have already gone.

Jenkins described the newly merged retail and corporate bank as the new "powerhouse" for Barclays, to shift the focus from the investment bank. Higher bonuses had been paid last year to those Barclays wanted to keep, Jenkins said, referring to a "bench" of top staff to run the shrunken investment bank.

A number of investment bankers have left, including the American Skip McGee who joined when Barclays bought the Wall Street operations of Lehman Brothers after it went bankrupt in 2008. Jenkins said this was "generational change".

Regulatory demands that the bank hold more capital and a structural change in the FICC operations, were cited by Barclays for the changes to the investment bank. Jenkins said he intended to reduce the proportion of the bank's assets used for investment banking from 50% to 30% by 2016.

We have looked at the best fitness dvd, on todays market that will no give you the body you always wanted for just 25 minutes each monrning. (FOCUS T25).

When it comes to H20, salt is not the enemy. "Water needs electrolytes like sodium, potassium, and chloride to be best absorbed," says Jenny Westerkamp, an R.D. in Chicago, which explains why they're added to popular sports drinks.

She recommends adding a pinch of Celtic sea salt or real salt (unrefined and unbleached) to your water before chugging. "

The electrolytes in the salt will push water into the cells where they need to be, rather than letting the water get flushed out, causing you to go to the bathroom every other minute." You'll notice a spike in energy after staying hydrated, too, and you'll be less likely to give in to cravings which are even harder to avoid when you're running on empty.

Your mum taught it to you when you were little, and now you're teaching it to your kiddos, but are you doing it yourself? You better be. Otherwise, "you'll end up snacking on the wrong food or eating too much at the next meal," says Shoshana Werber, R.D. Keep some healthy snacks around to keep your belly happy in between meals.

Find yourself fidgeting?

Embrace it. You can call it NEAT, or non-exercise activity thermogenesis. "It's energy that we expend on everything we do besides sleep, eat, and exercise," says Werber. "NEAT-related activities can speed up your metabolism and burn calories." Things like walking while you talk on the phone, cleaning, fidgeting, and dancing while you cook (come on, we know we aren't the only ones) all count.

Get more ZZZs

"If you're tired and up late, you're more prone to late-night snacking, which often causes weight gain," says Weber. "Lack of sleep impacts your hunger and fullness hormones—ghrelin and leptin—making it more difficult to lose weight." Put those chips back on the shelf, girl. It's midnight.

Write it down

Keeping a food journal forces you to look at the foods you're eating on a daily basis. "You'll be much more honest with yourself about what and how much you're actually eating," says Werber. And science backs it up: A recent survey from the weight-loss app Lose It! found that users who logged their daily eats lost more weight than those who didn't.

Think about it: You'll actually want to eat healthier because writing, "12 cookies" and "18 chocolate squares" in the same journal entry is just not ideal, while writing "oven-roasted salmon with broccoli and wild rice, plus two squares of dark chocolate for dessert" sounds way more satisfying—and something to be proud of.

New research reveals women who steal recipes from them weigh more than those who don't. Copy these yummy meal ideas instead, and maybe just watch your favorite shows for the thrill of the cooking competition (we're looking at you, Bobby Flay).

Stop weighing yourself

Research shows it can backfire when weight loss is your goal. If you get too wrapped up in the number of pounds you still have to shed, you can get discouraged and be tempted to give up altogether. Just focus on having healthier behaviors—and use your clothes or weekly selfies as a guide if you need one—and the weight loss will follow.

Get social

Speaking of selfies, don't be afraid to show them to your friends. And yeah, we know your instinct is to give some major eye roll when scrolling through an abdomen-filled Instagram feed, but try to refrain. Studies show that celebrating your clean eats and workout commitments on social media can actually promote weight loss because the support you'll get from those around you will motivate you to keep it up. So go on and click "post" already.

Mix in some matcha

We're talking about the powdered green tea that's been popular in Japan for quite some time now, and is now making waves in the U.S. A study found that it contains extremely high amounts of epigallocatechin gallate, or EGCG, which helps stop the growth of fat cells. Matcha is also loaded with these health benefits, so get ready to go green.

Go public

Researchers have found that public commuters have less body fat than those who drive, probably because of the extra walking and standing that's required when you take a train or a bus. It's not rocket science, but hey, it works. And those bills you save in gas? All a bonus.

Branch out with berries

A new study found that camu camu, an Amazonian berry, contains about 2,000 milligrams of vitamin C in just 3.5 ounces of fruit and can help lower blood sugar. When your blood sugar is too high, you need more insulin to metabolize the food you eat, and insulin stops your body from using stored fat as energy, says Westerkamp. In other words, higher blood sugar = more insulin = stored fat sticking around for way too long. Unfortunately, you won't find fresh camu camu berries at your local grocery store, but you can purchase them as a raw powder—perfect for mixing into smoothies—online or at natural health food stores.

Update your iPhone

If you haven't yet taken advantage of Apple's new Health app on iOS 8, it's time to start. You can track your daily activity, what you eat, how well you sleep, and tons of other health stats. Think of it as an easy way to stay on top of your weight-loss goals without buying yet another activity tracker. (We love 'em, but a girl can only have so many.)

Go nuts for nuts

Studies have shown that a diet high in nuts results in greater weight loss, and now scientists are finding the benefits go even further. New research found that peanuts can improve vascular health, while almonds can reduce belly fat and your risk of heart disease. Snack on a handful in the afternoon, or toss 'em in your salad for some extra healthy crunch.

Make your goals realistic

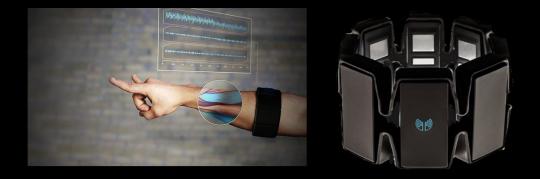

Do we all want to have Jennifer Aniston's OR Brad Pitts body tomorrow? Obviously. Is it likely? Probably not. So instead of resorting to a crash-and-burn diet—which you know is going to fail before you even start it, so why waste the time—incorporate healthy tweaks to your routine one at a time. Research shows that it can help make a habit stick, and it can prevent you from feeling overwhelmed by a ton of change.

Try swapping your canola oil for the coconut kind when you cook one week, and once you're used to that, replace a white starch with a green veggie at every meal. Look at that—pounds are peeling off without you going crazy in the process

The Myo Armband will to do away with your computer mouse

Wearable computing tech on the way that allows you to control your machine with a flick of the wrist.

Causing a stir on the internet is a new wearable device known as the Myo. Coming from startup Thalamic Labs the Myo is a one-size-fits-all armband that can be used to interact with your computer by simply moving your arm around.

The Myo is capable of measuring the motion and electrical activity of the wearers arm, allowing it to differentiate specific hand gestures. The device has already been set up for a few common mouse commands such as a mouse click, double click and scroll.

Myo is planned to work with Windows, Mac, Android or iOS device and is currently available to pre-order for a September release at the price of $149.

Review: BT Smart Home Cam 100

The BT Smart Cam is a WiFi home video monitoring device capable of streaming and capturing footage in high definition.

Upon receiving the BT Smart Home Cam I was a little skeptical, despite having a very sleek design it didn't look too different from the average webcam, if maybe a bit bulkier. So I was curious as to what the device could really offer me as opposed to a much cheaper webcam.

Innovative Tablet Concepts We Wish Were Real

The tech industry has built tablets since 2002, but it's only in the last four years that they've sold a large number of devices that exceeds the sales of personal computer. In fact, an estimated 285 million tabs were manufactured this year — almost the same quantity as desktops and notebooks combined. While different manufacturers continue to present us with their most innovative design,

The biggest Oil lift in the North Sea

How do you go about removing a massive piece of infrastructure from a hostile environment like the North Sea?

Oil giant Shell has come up with one answer which could be put to the test next year - using a mega-ship to remove the topside of an oil platform in a single lift.

Measuring 300m from the seabed to its highest point, the Brent Delta platform stands as tall as the Eiffel Tower.

The structure, one of four located in the Brent field, is located 115 miles out to sea off Shetland. It has reached the end of its production life after 35 years.

At its peak in 1982, the Brent field produced more than half a million barrels of oil per day. Production that year would have met the annual energy needs of around half of all

UK homes.

Plans have been drawn up by operator Shell to decommission Delta, and a new giant Korean-built ship has been lined up to take on the first major challenge.

At 382m long - the length of five jumbo jets - Pioneering Spirit has been tasked with removing the Delta's 24,000-tonne topside. That's the part of the platform which houses the accommodation block, helipad and other operational areas.

'Hostile environments'

On its website, the company says: "Analysis has shown that in hostile environments such as the North Sea, a motion compensation system is essential on a single-lift vessel to eliminate impact forces on large topsides.

"In the absence of such a system, local damage can occur even when the wave height is small and vessel motions are very limited."

Shell considered two other options for the Delta topside before choosing the single lift.

One was a process known as "piece small," which involves cutting the topside into small pieces - each weighing between 10kg and 100kg - and shipping them back to shore.

The second option, "reverse install," involves cutting and removing large sections or modules in the reverse order from which they were installed.

Shell argues that its single-lift proposals will reduce time, costs and environmental risks associated with the decommissioning process.

What Are CONFLICT DIAMONDS?

What is a conflict diamond?

Conflict diamonds, also known as blood diamonds, war diamonds, or converted diamonds, are defined by the United Nations as "diamonds that originate from areas controlled by forces or factions opposed to legitimate and internationally recognized governments, and are used to fund military action in opposition to those governments..." Essentially, these diamonds are mined and sold in wartorn areas, with the profits used to fund violent rebellions.

Where do conflict diamonds come from?

The vast majority of conflict diamonds come from countries in southern and western Africa. The first reports of conflict diamonds were published in 1998 by Global Witness, and revealed the role that diamonds played in funding the rebels of the National Union for the Total Independence of Angola (UNITA) in their war against the government. Angola, the Democratic Republic of the Congo, and Sierra Leone are the most widely mentioned countries of origin for conflict diamonds, although other African countries including Côte d'Ivoire, Zimbabwe, and Liberia have also been involved in the practice.

What's being done about it?

In 2003, the UN established the Kimberley Process Certification Scheme (KPCS) to prevent the proliferation and sale of conflict diamonds. The diamond industry is very serious about self-policing at all levels of the supply chain. All major rough diamond producers, exporters, and importers are now members of the KPCS, and any diamond dealer who is found to be non-compliant is often blacklisted. Their reputation is severely damaged, and dealers and jewelers will be very hesitant to do business with them. Despite criticism, the Kimberley Process has been quite successful in increasing sales of legal diamonds and discouraging the trade of conflict diamonds.

How many conflict diamonds are out there?

Once a diamond is cut, it is very difficult to tell where it came from. However, the number of conflict diamonds in circulation has drastically decreased over the past twenty years. At the peak of the Sierra Leone conflict, it is estimated that conflict diamonds accounted for between 4% and 15% of the global diamond trade. Currently, the World Diamond Council claims that less than 1% of diamonds are conflict diamonds.

How can I make sure my diamond isn't a conflict diamond?

Some retailers, like Brilliant Earth, specialize in conflict-free diamonds. If a jeweler is compliant with the Kimberley Process, he or she should be able to show you a diamond's System of Warranties statement. You don't have to avoid all diamonds from Africa; in fact, many of these countries rely on the legal diamond trade to finance schools, infrastructure, and growth. When diamond shopping, ask the store owner about the process it uses to guarantee its diamonds are conflict-free. He or she

CONFLICT FREE DIAMONDS

Buying Diamonds In a Better World

The Kimberley Process was established to halt human rights abuses resulting from rebel groups using the profits of diamonds to fund their wars or coup d'états. Its 54 members come from 90 countries and account for almost 100% of the global trade in rough diamonds. The scheme was set up to ensure the international supply of diamonds didn't come from warlords. It has helped stem millions of dollars to would-be rebels.

About The New Format

Beginning January 2014, GIA's benchmark laboratory reports will have a new look. They'll contain the same trusted grading and identification data in an easier-to-read format. The reports will also contain enhanced security features and unique QR codes providing direct access to Report Check for quick report verification. The new reports consume less paper and other materials to help clients reduce their storage and postage costs.

Exchanging Reports for the Revised Format

The introduction of the revised format will not affect the validity of previously issued reports. If you'd still like to exchange your current report for one in the new format, GIA's Reissue Program offers a cost-effective way to do so.

Reports Qualifying for Reissue: Any prior version report dated on or after January 1, 2013. Reports dated prior to January 1, 2013 are subject to the standard update service and fees,

Reissue Fees:

Reports dated January 1, 2013 to June 30, 2013: $10 USD for Dossier; $15 USD for all other reports, Reports dated July 1, 2013 to December 31, 2013: No Charge

All requests for reissues at these special rates must be submitted by December 31, 2014, otherwise regular Update Service and corresponding fees apply.

How the Reissue Program works:

- Complete a Reissue Request form and submit along with your current report to any GIA laboratory or intake location worldwide
- You do not need to resubmit your gemstones
- Free shipping and handling
- Please allow up to 10 business days to process after report are received
- Reports issued in new format will carry the date of the original report
- If payment is required, you will be invoiced in the local currency of the lab where you submitted
- Reissue program expires December 31, 2014

Diamonds, from Pits to Depths

Several international mining corporations have established regional headquarters in Botswana and are looking for diamonds, uranium, gold and oil. Many have come back with positive results. Galane Gold Ltd announced that it has kicked off its first ore exploration from Tau underground in the northern part of the country.

Galane Gold or GG is a Toronto-based investment firm, an unhedged gold producer and explorer acting in mining operation and exploration in the Republic of Botswana. It is a publically traded company which is listed on both the TSX Venture Exchange and the Botswana Stock Exchange. Galane Gold has already had several extensive exhibitions in the management of mining and exploring programs.

"This gold exploration is an expected evolution in order to improve the company's performance," GG said. The firm contributes with senior professional employees, who are committed to respect the environment and the communities in which they work.

At the beginning, GG didn't have the intention to pursue the resource of gold in Tau through underground mining. It started the project in the fourth quarter of 2013 and has finished its forced portal entry at the bottom of the existing Tau pit and the installation of the entire infrastructure required for the exploration. The company has put a graphical presentation of the detailed mining plan on the reported resource to mine about 85,000 ounces of gold over the next three years.

Ravi Sood, the Chief executive officer of Galane Gold, stated, "This project is a major step in the evolution of the company both with regards to a change from open pit mining to underground mining and our plans to extend mine life through further exploration." He then added, "We have completed this project within six months and from our own operating cash-flows is a testament to the experienced management team that we have put in place."

Botswana is ranked as the best investment jurisdiction in Africa, according to World Bank Global Investment Benchmarking Report. According to the Fraser Institute Global survey of Mining Companies best African mining jurisdiction and the seventh best mining country globally. It also has a strong economic environment. In fact, Botswana is regarded as the best mining country in Africa. It has political stability and strong GDP growth. Its status as an English speaking country is why Multinational firms such as Galane Gold can operate on its ground. The Australian firm, Gallery Gold, however, has also its entire exploration of Gold in the country. The company's most prospect exploration was the Mupane Gold Mine which officially opened in February 2005, will produce approximately 100,000 ounces of gold per year. Apart from that, Botswana is an emerging mining powerhouse.

SAVE THE CHILDREN

URGENT WARNING FOR ALL BUYER AND SELLER/BROKERS

This should be the most important information released in the commodity industry, where the severity of this warning should make everyone realize the most serious impact that pertains in Oil and other commodities transactions.

FEM is happy to release this very important message to anyone involved in the commodities industry concerning the new measures with respect to all Buyers and Sellers conducting business` transactions around the globe.

From now on, if an ICPO, LOI, RWA, or BCL is issued and the document is not real, true and/or actually verifiably factual, the Buyer will be able to inform the FBI, ICC, and INTERPOL. In addition, after an FCO is sent to the Buyer, there should be a formal answer to Seller from Buyer in a timely manner in accordance with the agre

If there is no response from in a timely manner, company will be reported to the FBI, ICC and Interpol. If this action is not resolved they will be reported for abuse of the NCND, LOI, ICPO, AND RWA OR BCL, FOR THIS IS NOW A FEDERAL OFFENSE.

It is important to transmit this to all clients that work with providers that are members of the ICC, FBI, and other international organizations. From this point forward, the international codes will be strictly enforced to exclude all intruders that send or transmit false information. Those who submit a false NCND/IMFPA, LOI, ICPO, RWA or BCL, or FCO, as well as FALSE PROOF OF PRODUCT (POP), FALSE PROOF OF FUNDS (POF) WILL BE CHARGED WITH A CRIME.

This offense went into effect on November 15, 2008 and re-effected in June 2013 after a meeting was held between the Federal Reserve, European Central Bank, Interpol, Federal Bureau of Investigation and Central Intelligence Agency.

The reason for this measurement is to protect the commodities industry which is a fundamental part of the world's economy.

The Non-Circumvention, Non-Disclosure & Working Agreement (NCNDA&IMFPA) we signed and it stated: WARNING:

This should be the most important information released in the commodity industry for years where the severity of this warning should make everyone realize the serious impact that pertains in all oil and other commodities transactions.

Greek Finance Minister Yanis Varoufakis has accused Athens' creditors of "terrorism", the day before a referendum on an international bailout.

Speaking to Spain's El Mundo newspaper, he said the country's lenders wanted to "instil fear in people".

Huge rallies were held by both sides in the referendum on Friday night.

Italy: Army unveils 'cut-price cannabis' farm

The Italian army has unveiled its first cannabis farm, set up to try to lower the cost of medical marijuana in the country. The army's foray into cannabis production was first announced by the government in September, and its first crop is coming along nicely, The plants are being grown in a secure room at a military-run pharmaceutical plant in Florence,

Legal and restructuring costs have pushed Royal Bank of Scotland into the red for the first quarter of 2015. The 80% taxpayer-owned bank reported a loss of £446m for the three months to 31 March.

The loss followed an £856m provision for "litigation and conduct charges", as well as £453m for restructuring costs.

Federal Reserve keeps interest rates at record low

The Greek government has threatened to seize German property as compensation for a Nazi atrocity in World War Two. Justice Minister Nikos Paraskevopoulos said he was ready to approve a Supreme Court ruling from 2000 backing payment to relatives of the 218 victims.

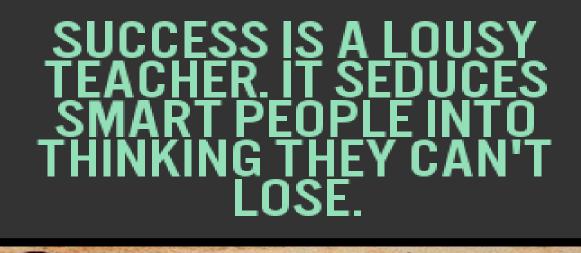

Tunisia beach attack: State of emergency declared

Tunisia has declared a state of emergency, just over a week after 38 tourists, mainly Britons, died in an attack in the resort city of Sousse. The state of emergency gives security forces more powers and limits the right of public assembly.

Quote of the Month

Sarcasm is the language of smart people.

Nothing will work unless you do.

A smart man only believes half of what he hears, a wise man knows which half.

IF YOU FIND IT NECESSARY TO JUDGE ME BY MY PAST, DON'T BE SURPRISED WHEN I FIND IT NECESSARY TO PUT YOU THERE.

BE STRONG ENOUGH TO STAND ALONE, SMART ENOUGH TO KNOW WHEN YOU NEED HELP, AND BRAVE ENOUGH TO ASK FOR IT.
